CONGRESS, THE LAST SAFEGUARD

Citizens of the United States turn to Congress to uphold their constitutional right to court appeal from bureaucratic rulings having the force of law.

"Give a citizen the right to take OPA problems into court when he cannot get the Price Administrator to act on a problem," said Elisha Hanson to a Congressional committee studying extension beyond June 30 of the Emergency Price Control Act. Hanson spoke for the Safeway Stores. He showed that during a whole year he had been unable to get OPA to act finally on a single one of 10 protests, nor could he get them before the Emergency Court of Appeals.

To back up his appeal, he exhibited a current page advertisement of his client, offering food, much of it at prices below the ceiling highs allowed by OPA. He told the story of a grocery company that sells below ceilings on food items when it is possible, but which balks when not able to get action from the Price Administrator on its complaints against discrimination that forces selling below operating costs on other items.

He showed that Safeway, which bought fresh vegetables and produce directly from growers and performed its own crating, packing, refrigerating and other warehouse functions for its retail outlets, was "denied credit or allowances" for the expense involved in those wholesale functions, although they were exactly the same as those on which jobbers are allowed credit in performing such services for other retailers.

Hanson asked two basic changes in the price control act which seem fundamental to justice: (1) Action from the Price Administrator on complaints in reasonable time, and (2) recourse to courts for a hearing.

Congress is the last resort of the citizen for protection against official rulings and directives which have the effect of law without independent court review.

CAN'T EAT COMPLIMENTS

"You know it's remarkable how many friends have turned up recently for our good old American tradition of 'free private enterprise,'" said C. F. Mason, president of the United States Telephone association, in addressing that organization in Chicago. "Only a little more than a year ago, you could count on your fingers the outspoken friends of private enterprise . . . But now Senator George's postwar planning committee turns up in favor of free private enterprise. Senator Truman's committee is in favor of free enterprise. The President's own official postwar advisor, Baruch, is in favor of free private enterprise . . . And . . . I almost fell out of my chair when I read that Earl Browder . . . head man of what used to be the Communist party—said he is in favor of free enterprise.

"I am glad they are all turning up for the system which has brought much happiness to the human race, but . . . private enterprise can't live on compliments any more than stage actors can eat roses and fan mail. We have to protect it and provide an atmosphere in which it will thrive and flourish. Every time the Federal or local government passes a law which discriminates in favor of tax-eating government enterprise, it puts another burden on tax-paying private enterprise. Given a sufficient accumulation of such burdens, the balance of our national economy can be swung toward socialism . . .

"Most of us take pride in our ability to pay salaries and wages which make available to our employes the dignity and satisfaction of relatively high living standards . . . If these standards cannot be maintained under present revenue conditions, it probably has become an obligation upon all of us to secure the necessary revenues to provide such benefits to our employes . . . The time has come for those companies operating under the handicap of inadequate rates and ever-mounting operating expenses, to move aggressively for higher . . . rates. We can make the job easier—and probably more effective—if we prepare our case in a thorough manner and then present it to the proper authorities with frankness, candor and friendliness . . . As we believe in the American system of government, so we must have confidence in the fundamental fairness and integrity of the regulatory bodies."

Beat egg yolks slightly in top of double boiler; add 1 cup of the sugar and the cornstarch; mix well. Add milk gradually, stirring until smooth. Add raisins, lemon juice, lemon rind, and butter or margarine. Cook over rapidly boiling water about 15 minutes, or until thickened, stirring frequently. Cool; pour into baked 9-inch pastry shell. Booby Trap M

Booby traps are cunningly designed to blow up the unwar who grabs for the bait.

The only difference in those on Main Street is that they carry tags. But the result is just the same, though the action m a little delayed.

Every time we buy something we don't really need . . .
time we pay more than ceiling prices for anything . . . ever we buy rationed goods without ration stamps . . . we help prices up.

We've got to control ourselves to control prices. We must to want things we don't really need.

We'll hold prices down, and we'll guarantee a sound futu

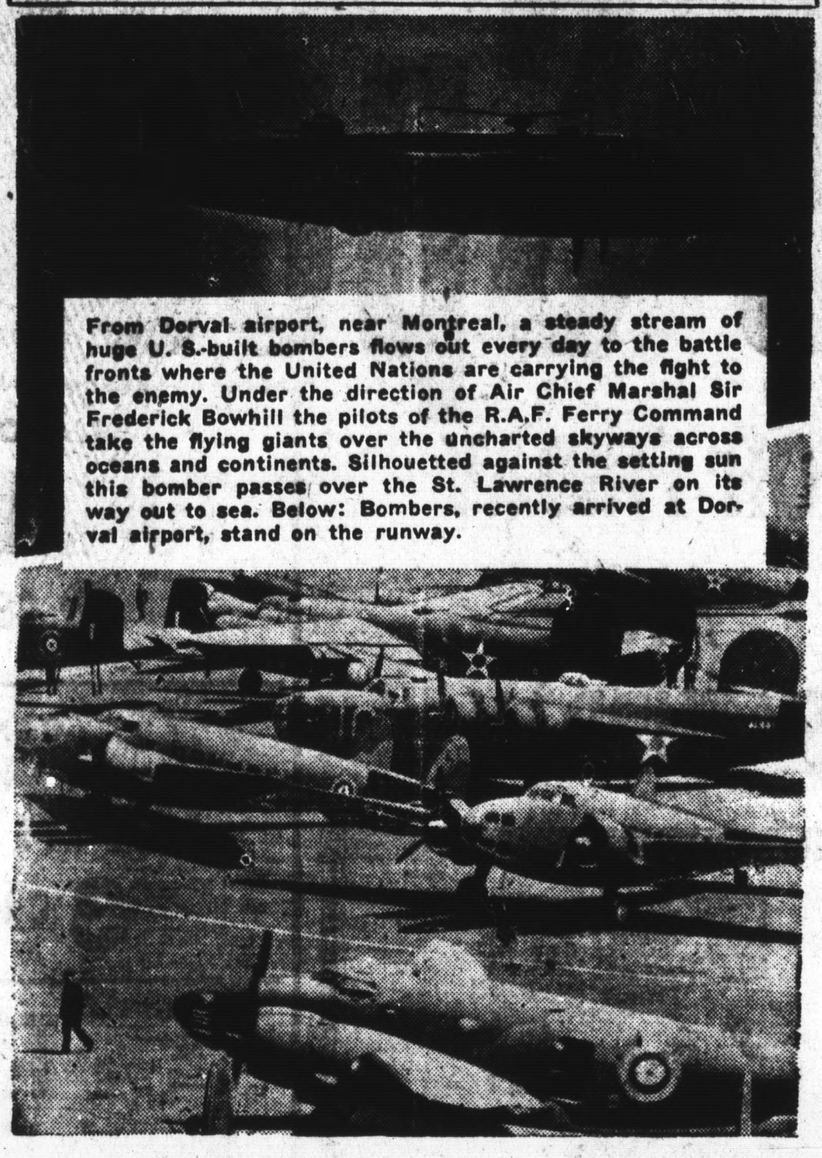
START OF AN OCEAN HOP



From Dorval airport, near Montreal, a steady stream of huge U. S.-built bombers flows out every day to the battle fronts where the United Nations are carrying the fight to the enemy. Under the direction of Air Chief Marshal Sir Frederick Bowhill the pilots of the R.A.F. Ferry Command take the flying giants over the uncharted skyways across oceans and continents. Silhouetted against the setting sun this bomber passes over the St. Lawrence River on its way out to sea. Below: Bombers, recently arrived at Dorval airport, stand on the runway.
